Schwabacher benefit

Waveland Players production opens Friday at Civic Center

The Waveland Players will present C. B. Gilford's "Bull In A China Shop," a zany murder mystery, on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 1-2, repeating the following Friday and Saturday, Aug. 8-9, at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tickets, at $4, will be available at the door.

The opening night performance will be a benefit for Sherry Schwabacher, an active participant in little theater work in Hancock County, who is hospitalized with injuries from a recent traffic accident.

The play, originally published in "Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine," was performed as one of the "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" television series in the 1960s.

The story is about six bored elderly spinsters who titillate themselves by spying on their neighbors with binoculars.

They all develop a heavy crush on the handsome young man they watch in his apartment and yearn to meet him. When they learn that he is a homicide detective, they hit upon the way to get him to come calling: have a murder, of course.

The detective Dennis O'Finn, played by Martin Booda, is greeted by the giggling bevy of five ladies ready for a tea party when he comes to investigate the murder of the sixth member of the household, laid out in ancient finery on the living room couch.

Portraying the spinsters are Lady Carver, the bossy but proper landlady, Hildegarde; Gayle Roy as Berdie, so smitten with O'Finn that she's constantly on the verge of swooning; Glenda Coss as Amantha, who usually has more questions than answers; Edith Back as Miss Lucy, who lives with memories of a love who got away 40 years earlier; Ingrid Ling as Miss Nettie, whose foot is usually in her mouth; and Barbara Fitch as Miss Elizabeth, the first to be sacrificed to the group's plan to get the handsome detective in its clutches.

Ted Stechmann plays O'Finn's sidekick, Kramer, the only one who has a full grasp on reality.

Janet Hinyub plays the reporter who comes to cover the story but instead falls for O'Finn herself. Johnson, the police fingerprint expert, is played by Jeff Eberhart.

Producer for the show is Joyce Ohman; director is Mike Hamm.

Health Department permit fee collection begins tomorrow

Sanitarians in every county health department will begin enforcing a new law Aug. 1—a law designed to ensure continued protection of Mississippi's environmental health.

The Mississippi Legislature in its 1986 session authorized the State Department of Health to assess and collect a fee for issuing permits—which are required by law—to food service establishments, dairy and shellfish processing plants and mobile home and recreational vehicle parks.

Through passage of Senate Bill 2685, the Legislature also authorized the public health agency to charge fees for the final approval of individual on-site wastewater disposal system and private water supplies.

"The intent of the new law is to provide funding needed to maintain sanitation services at current base levels," said State Health Officer Dr. Alton B. Cobb. "Without authorization to charge and collect fees, the agency would have been forced to reduce staff and eliminate essential environmental health services."

Public health philosophy in favor of such "user fees" is that the people who use or primarily benefit from a government service should pay at least part of the cost of providing those services, Dr. Cobb explained.

Still, several services—inspections, follow-up, education and plans review, for example—will continue to be provided at no cost to clients.

Authority to charge fees for these certain sanitation programs and to increase fees in the child care and radiological health areas is expected to generate about $600,000 in FY 1987 and approximately $800,000 in subsequent years.

The annual permit fee for food service facilities is based upon the facility's seating capacity: $15 for 0 to 25 seats; $35 for 26 to 75 seats; and $50 for 75 or more seats.

Other annual permit fees are $150 for milk plants; $45 for shellfish processing plants; and $25 for mobile home and recreational vehicle parks.

Additionally, the new law provides that the Department of Health charge $35 to any individual requesting written approval of an on-site wastewater disposal system and $10 to anyone requesting written approval of a private water supply.

Detailed information about the sanitation fee system is available by calling Louis Fernandez, sanitarian at the Hancock County Health Department, 467-6387, or the Office of Public Relations, Mississippi State Department of Health, Jackson, 961-4664.

Heat caused power outage

Coast Electric Power Association reports that extreme high temperatures experienced in the past several days have created unusually high demand for electricity in certain areas of its system.

"Some members in Bay St. Louis and Waveland experienced power interruptions Tuesday afternoon and evening when temperatures climbed above the 100° mark," according to association spokesman William J. Stechmann.

"The extraordinary load put on the system caused equipment failure at our Bay-Waveland and Turner Street substations," Stechmann said.

"Coast Electric has made adjustments to accommodate this additional demand and we do not expect further outages due to the high temperatures," Stechmann added.

A delightful book of interesting recipes is the "Pass Christian Seafood Festival Cookbook" - which made its debut at the tenth annual Pass Christian Seafood Festival this past weekend in Memorial Park.

And, believe me, it was selling like the proverbial hot cakes, when Sunday evening's deluge brought the festival to an abrupt but highly successful close!

Don't despair if you didn't manage to buy a copy before the thunder and lightning and torrents of rain - the cookbooks are available from Pass Christian Seafood Festival, P. O. Box 375, Pass Christian, Ms., 39571; price is $6 each, plus $1.50 postage and handling.

The cookbook was printed by The Cookbook Company, Government St., Mobile, Ala.

Compiled and published by "Parents and Friends of St. Paul's Catholic School and dedicated "to the Children of St. Paul's," the cookbook is the result of weeks and weeks of collecting and testing recipes - and is a stellar contribution to our coastal cuisine. Even a few of this writer's recipes are included.

Some recipes are old favorites, perhaps with a new twist; others are quite innovative - and you may be sure that I'll be trying them out, with delicious results, I'm sure.

Two extra-special recipes are Thelma Yockey's Crawfish Cardinale and Lynn Rabalais' Crawfish Stew - and when you've no crawfish, substitute shrimp - you'll still have a delicious dish!

So, first, here's:

THELMA YOCKEY'S CRAWFISH CARDINALE

1 lb. crawfish tails
1 stick butter
2 Tbsp. butter
2 Tbsp. flour
3 green onions, finely chopped
1 rib celery, finely chopped
½ cup catsup
1 cup heavy cream
1 can mushroom pieces, drained
1 jigger brandy

In a large saucepan, melt the stick of butter, add the onion and celery, and cook until soft, about 30 minutes. Gently stir in the crawfish tails and set aside.

In another saucepan, melt the two tablespoons of butter, and stir in the flour - but DO NOT BROWN! Add the catsup and cream, and cook, stirring, until the sauce thickens. Combine with the crawfish tails, then add the mushrooms and cook until bubbly. Remove from the heat, and add the brandy.

Put into a casserole or individual ramekins. To reheat, bake at 350 degrees until bubbly. Garnish with lemon slice, paprika and toast points. (You may also substitute crabmeat for the crawdads in this recipe).

And, for another crawdad treat, here's:

LYNN RABALAIS' CRAWFISH STEW

1 lb. crawfish tails
1 stick butter
1 pkg. frozen chopped seasoning mix
3 Tbsp. flour
1/3 cup chopped parsley
2 toes garlic, chopped
1 can tomato sauce
2 cans beef broth
Pepper, salt

In a large heavy pot, melt the butter and stir in the flour to make a roux. Cook the parsley and garlic in the seasoning mix until softened, but not brown.

Add the tomato sauce, beef broth and crawfish tails, and cook for approximately 20 minutes. Add pepper and salt to taste.

These are just two of the recipes that set my taste buds a-tingling.

But, glance at some of the others - pickled shrimp, crab-stuffed mushrooms, marinated spaghetti, shrimp ring - and as for the sweets - there's Father Ron's Birthday Cake, Mississippi Mud Cake, Fudge Cake and on and on, even to "Drunk Ice Cream," a speedy spectacular. Let's close with:

GOOGSIE RAFFERTY'S DRUNK ICE CREAM

½ gallon vanilla ice cream
1½ dozen almond macaroons
2½ cups bourbon
1 tsp. almond extract
First, melt the ice cream, and whip until smooth. Crumble the macaroons and fold into the cream mixture. Add the bourbon and almond extract, and freeze for two hours. Oh!

Stolen car discovered

By ELLIS CUEVAS

An automobile stolen in New Orleans was recovered at a Waveland wrecker service on Monday.

The vehicle was towed from I-10 near the Diamondhead Exit by N.A. Perniciaro's Auto Service, according to Hancock County Criminal Investigator Glen Strong.

Strong added, "Waveland Patrolman Michael Pendergast checked the vehicle's license tag and found that it was reportedly stolen in New Orleans from Jane C. Goodwin on July 17."

"A driver of the vehicle called Perniciaro to have it towed to New Orleans. He was unable to pay the wrecker service and Perniciaro returned with the car to his Waveland yard," Strong stated.

The investigator continued, "It was then that Patrolman Pendergast became suspicious and ran a tag check and found it was stolen."

Strong is in charge of the investigation.

Community needs to pull together on school issue

Pulling together by everyone is now needed if the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District is ever going to be able to provide space for kindergarten classes.

The things which have happened in the past, some of which you may not have particularly liked, now have to be entirely forgotten.

There now appear to be too many folks wanting to go in too many different directions in solving the classroom space problems.

When it goes to leasing, purchasing, or renting property, one must remember whatever actions are taken by the school board, or any governmental agency, must be done within the laws of the state.

Think of our children while pulling together.

This is the big weekend for St. Clare's Annual Fair and Fish Fry.

Waveland Mayor John Longo and his cooking crew are already gearing up for the fish fry on Friday evening which begins at 4 p.m.

For a donation of $4 for adults and $3 for children, one gets a very good seafood supper on Friday.

Take-outs are available. For further information call 467-3553.

The fair will be held on the church's grounds starting at 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The annual event will feature food, beverages, games, a baby pageant, cake decorating contest, horse rides, and a kiddie world.

On Sunday there will be barbecued chicken dinners available on the church's grounds following 11 a.m. Mass, and there will also be take-outs available.

So don't forget St. Clare's Church Fair and Fish Fry this weekend. We hope to see you there.

Hot weather has been the talk of the town for the past several days.

This is the longest stretch of hot weather in the area we can recall.

It has appeared to have rained in every area bordering Bay St. Louis and Waveland, yet very little has fallen in both cities.

We know the farmers in the county are also suffering from a lack of moisture and the over 100 degrees in temperature.

On a trip to Nashville last week we noted many trees with brown leaves. It appears that areas is also suffering from a drought.

Whenever the rains come, we will probably be wanting it to stop.

We know the power companies have been very busy in trying to meet the added demands on the amount of electricity being used because of the hot weather.

It has been a long time since such demands have been placed on the companies.

It is amazing how one can be so many miles from home and bump into a neighbor.

We were at the Opryland Hotel last Thursday evening only a few minutes and bumped into Dr. Frank Schmidt and his family.

We were at a publishers meeting and he at a radiologists meeting.

While in Nashville we had conversations with Larry Nash, former Echo publisher, and also Jerry Whittle, a former general manager and managing editor of the Echo.

Both said to tell their friends hello in the Bay-Waveland and Hancock County areas.

Whittle is publisher of the newspaper in Thomson, Ga. and Nash is working at the daily newspaper in Bastrop, La.

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

JACKSON—To the British, 145 years is like a week, or a month, certainly in financial matters.

One of the black marks on Mississippi's financial history came back to haunt State Treasurer Bill Cole when he was in England two weeks ago to discuss the possibility of issuing Mississippi bonds in Europe.

The first thing the British bankers said to him was, "fine, but what are you going to do about those Union and Planters' Bank bonds?"

What they were talking about was the $5 million in bonds sold by the state of Mississippi in 1839 to establish the state-owned Union Bank and $2 million in bonds for the state-owned Planters' Bank.

Both the banks went sour, and amid a broiling political controversy between the Whigs and the Democrats, the Mississippi Legislature in 1842 had enacted a resolution prohibiting repayment of the bonds.

Most of the $7 million in bonds issued by the state had wound up in the hands of British banks, who were left holding the bag by the state's defaulting on their repayment.

To his amazement, Cole learned that the London-based Council of Foreign Bond Holders carries a dossier on the Mississippi bond default with all sorts of fascinating information contained therein.

Among the papers in the dossier is an 1839 letter from Daniel Webster saying the bonds were a legal obligation of Mississippi, an early day bond opinion to make them saleable to the British investors. In all likelihood, Webster was a friend of Nicholas Biddle, the early advocate of the Bank of the United States, who purchased the Mississippi bonds and resold them, mostly to foreign investors.

Ironically, $460,000 of the bonds had been bought by George Peabody, the education philanthropist who made gifts to build buildings on college campuses across the South following the Civil War. One such building still exists on the Ole Miss campus.

The $460,000 bonds were sent to the Mississippi Treasurer's office as a donation some 70 years ago, and are still in Cole's possession. If ever paid off, the proceeds are supposed to go to Ole Miss and Mississippi State University.

The Council of Foreign Bond Holders at last reading back in 1928 could locate only $2.8 million of the old Mississippi bonds.

Cole figures that if the existing bonds were paid off with principal and interest it would amount to $57 million. If the interest on the bonds were compounded, the tab would run better than $1 billion.

Actually, Cole believes that the British based Council would be willing to accept just a token settlement in order to get Mississippi off the list of bond defaulters it carries.

Also on the bad bond list are the Soviet Union and China. But while Cole was in London, the Soviet Union came in and paid off $45 million in bad bonds in order to get off the list.

The bad debt would not absolutely keep Mississippi from selling bonds in Europe now, Cole says, but it would mean that the Bank of England would object and prevent any British Banks from buying them. "That, of course, would be very bad publicity," says the state treasurer.

Ironically, the bond default by Mississippi came into play during the Civil War, according to a history, "Jacksonian Democracy in Mississippi," written by Edwin Arthur Miles and published by the University of North Carolina Press in 1960. Miles wrote that the "Mississippi Repudiation" was used by the Unionists to thwart Confederate attempts to secure foreign loans during the Civil War.

The burning issue in Mississippi back in the 1830's was the establishment of a state-owned bank which was seen as the salvation for the state's depressed economy. At the time Mississippi was an expanding state.

The Union Bank was created in 1838 with the board appointed by the Legislature, made up of state officeholders and politicians who were on the opposite side of the political fence from the governor.

The state level squabbling that went on back then seems vaguely familiar in 1986, as Bill Allain and Ed Pittman go at each other.

Before long, the Union Bank which was hailed as "the Bargain of 1839," began to wane after losing $15 a bale on cotton loans and being charged with making loans to directors and other favored persons.

The issue of repudiating the Union Bank bonds was decisive in the 1841 gubernatorial race, sweeping anti-bond Democrat Tilghman M. Tucker into office, and paving the way for the legislative action in 1842.

Cole admits he was caught by surprise that the Mississippi bond default has not been forgotten by the British financial markets.

"But when you're sitting in a 600 year old building discussing it, I guess 145 years doesn't seem so long," he said.

There's an old saying: "Everyone complains about the weather, but no one ever does anything about it."

Bay-Waveland school board may be subject to state scrutiny

The Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Sir,

The time has come when all of those having an interest in the Bay-Waveland School District must take positive action.

That can be accomplished by a petition requesting the State Board of Education to investigate the actions of the school board.

Not making the necessary facilities for kindergarten classes available in time to comply with State Law is unexcusable.

The time allowed, approximately four years, was ample. Not making any attempt to provide the necessary facilities until the time of compliance was practically upon us bears investigation.

The time consuming delaying tactics now being employed will probably make it necessary to use trailer classrooms in order to comply with the law.

The Board of Education can support the school board should the Board of Education find that the evidence justifies such action.

It is up to the people who are interested to let those who have shown leadership in opposing the school board know that they are willing to work to request the State Board of Education to provide relief.

With the help of God, what is best for our children will be accomplished.

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate officers of the Mississippi Municipal Association, President Dale Danks of Jackson; First Vice President Thomas Griffith of Amory; Second Vice President Gerald Blessey of Biloxi; outgoing President Wendell Craft of Tylertown; Executive Director Pat Dunn and his wife Bonnie on the successful convention held this month in Biloxi.

And I thank them all for the invitation to join them at the convention dinner.

Spending time with all of these dedicated municipal workers has confirmed my belief that now is the time to unite our local city and county efforts in order to better serve our people.

Loss of revenue sharing and other state and federal programs will be felt severely at all levels.

Uniting to face these problems together is imperative.

It is my sincerest hope to have close working relationships between cities and counties in this great state of Mississippi.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL PROVIDES BETTER

GOVERNMENT COORDINATION

In an effort to get state agencies to better coordinate their activities and to gain an awareness of similarities in their programs, I have established the Governor's Council on Policy and Action. The council held its first meeting on July 23 at the Governor's Mansion.

The council was established to help taxpayers through a working relationship among state agencies. The executive agencies of state government must further their abilities to respond to major issues with unified policies and action plans.

Presently, the governor has little direct input into the major agencies of state government. The council will help in the development of the governor's executive budget and legislative proposals. We will all be seeking better ways to use taxpayer dollars to make for more efficient delivery of services to the people.

The council is in no way planned to usurp the authority of any agency head. But many of these agency heads have decades of experience in state government. These collective years of experience can be put to use for the overall good of state government, instead of just one agency.

The members of the Council on Policy and Action are commissioner of Banking and Consumer Finance, director of Central Data Processing Authority, commissioner of corrections, director of Department of Economic Development, director of Employment Security Commission, director of Department of Energy and Transportation, director of Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, state fiscal officer, director of Division of General Services, state health officer, director of Division of Medicaid, director of Department of Mental Health, director of Bureau of Narcotics, director of Department of Natural Resources, state personnel officer, state superintendent of public education, commissioner of Public Safety, commissioner of Public Welfare, director of Research and Development Center, commissioner of Revenue, executive officer of Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning and executive officer of State Board of Community and Junior Colleges.

Tobacco claims more lives than cocaine, heroin, AIDS, traffic accidents, murder and terrorist attacks combined

"Tobaccoism is a disease like alcoholism. Its consequences are frequently cancer, emphysema and cardiovascular disease. But one cannot successfully combat these three without first tackling tobaccoism," says Dr. Francis E. LeJeune Jr., an Ochsner Clinic ear, nose and throat specialist.

The Ochsner Medical Institution has a long history of advocating the elimination of smoking. Dr. Alton Ochsner, one of its founding physicians, first made the connection between the incidence of lung cancer and smoking in the late 1930s.

Dr. LeJeune, whose father was also an Ochsner founder, says the fight against tobaccoism was given a recent boost by an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Byron J. Bailey of the University of Texas.

"I hope more physicians and the general public will be aroused by the knowledge that tobaccoism, or addiction to tobacco, is our nation's most deadly and expensive health problem. It claims more lives and dollars than cocaine, heroin, AIDS, traffic accidents, murder and terrorist attacks combined," Dr. LeJeune points out.

"In addition to the war on cancer, stroke and heart disease, we should be waging a war on the causes of these diseases. Tobaccoism is a principle cause. If such a campaign had been launched in the 1960s, we would probably be noticing the early signs of cancer reduction by now. It is currently estimated that the citizens of this country are losing their lives to tobaccoism at the rate of 1,000 per day. At this rate we will lose six million lives during the next 16 years, a tragedy the size of the Holocaust," Dr. LeJeune explains.

How can this daily tragedy be halted? By the following action as soon as possible, he says.

1. A tax on tobacco products to equal the cost to our society which the use of those products is causing. The price of a package of cigarettes should be $2.60 if it had to reflect the cost to our economy of tobacco related disease.

2. The major portion of this tobacco tax revenue should be earmarked for research dealing with tobacco addiction.

3. The federal subsidization of the growing of tobacco should be eliminated. It is inappropriate for our government to encourage the production of a product which is so harmful to its citizens.

4. An intensive anti-smoking campaign must be launched by all appropriate agencies, especially the U.S. Public Health Service. This should target the groups selected by tobacco advertisers, women and young adults. There are no "safe" tobacco products.

5. Remove all tobacco advertising from the public media and discourage the glamorizing of tobacco use by celebrities and moviemakers.

6. Warning labels must be placed on all tobacco products.

7. Encourage insurance companies to recognize and reward non-smokers with lower premiums for health, driving, homeowners and general liability insurance coverage.

8. Restrict the sale of all tobacco products to individuals 19 years or older.

"The reduction in human misery and in health care costs will help our poverty level population the most while making a contribution to reducing our national debt. It's time to talk to your lawmaker and enlist him in the war on tobaccoism," Dr. LeJeune states.

UNPLEASANTNESS

As Lord Peter Wimsey and his companions discover—just before dinner at the Bellona Club—that old General Fentiman has died right in his favorite armchair, the smell of a murder becomes aromatic, and Wimsey sets out to uncover just who checked old Fentiman out of the Bellona Club for good.

"The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club" stars Ian Carmichael as Wimsey and can be seen on "Murder Most English" at 9 p.m.,

Thursdays, beginning July 31, on Mississippi ETV. The popular four-episode series was first seen on public television in 1973.

Fentiman is found dead early in the evening on Armistice Day, 1922. On the same day, the general's long-stranded sister, Lady Dormer, also dies. A strange twist to Fentiman's holiday death, however, is that the highly patriotic general was not wearing his poppy. Wimsey then realizes that the time factor in the case is of the utmost importance.

Diamondhead landowners to discuss mineral rights

"Mineral Rights in Mississippi" will be discussed at a Diamondhead Community Association meeting Friday at the Country Club.

Cocktails will be served at 5:30 p.m.; dinner at 6:30, and general meeting at 7:30.

Reservations are required. Guest speakers include Representative Margaret Tate of Picayune, Mineral Attorney Lee Parker and Association of Mississippi President Mike Harris.

The economic and environmental impact on the state and the current legislative status will be discussed, as well as Diamondhead's position with regard to those rights.

PUBLIC NOTICE TEMPORARY ROAD CLOSING

The Board of Supervisors of Hancock County propose to replace the existing drainage structure on TEXAS FLAT ROAD in Hancock County.

It is the intent that Texas Flat Road will be closed to all traffic 500 ft. East of the McLeod Park entrance, Wednesday morning, August 6, 1986 for a period of approximately 4 or 5 hours.

Published by order of the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County, Mississippi dated this 16th day of July, 1986.

Community needs to pull together on school issue

Pulling together by everyone is now needed if the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District is ever going to be able to provide space for kindergarten classes.

The things which have happened in the past, some of which you may not have particularly liked, now have to be entirely forgotten.

There now appear to be too many folks wanting to go in too many different directions in solving the classroom space problems.

When it goes to leasing, purchasing, or renting property, one must remember whatever actions are taken by the school board, or any governmental agency, must be done within the laws of the state.

Think of our children while pulling together.

This is the big weekend for St. Clare's Annual Fair and Fish Fry.

Waveland Mayor John Longo and his cooking crew are already gearing up for the fish fry on Friday evening which begins at 4 p.m.

For a donation of $4 for adults and $3 for children, one gets a very good seafood supper on Friday.

Take-outs are available. For further information call 467-3553.

The fair will be held on the church's grounds starting at 4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

The annual event will feature food, beverages, games, a baby pageant, cake decorating contest, horse rides, and a kiddie world.

On Sunday there will be barbecued chicken dinners available on the church's grounds following 11 a.m. Mass, and there will also be take-outs available.

So don't forget St. Clare's Church Fair and Fish Fry this weekend. We hope to see you there.

Hot weather has been the talk of the town for the past several days.

This is the longest stretch of hot weather in the area we can recall.

It has appeared to have rained in every area bordering Bay St. Louis and Waveland, yet very little has fallen in both cities.

We know the farmers in the county are also suffering from a lack of moisture and the over 100 degrees in temperature.

On a trip to Nashville last week we noted many trees with brown leaves. It appears that areas is also suffering from a drought.

Whenever the rains come, we will probably be wanting it to stop.

We know the power companies have been very busy in trying to meet the added demands on the amount of electricity being used because of the hot weather.

It has been a long time since such demands have been placed on the companies.

It is amazing how one can be so many miles from home and bump into a neighbor.

We were at the Opryland Hotel last Thursday evening only a few minutes and bumped into Dr. Frank Schmidt and his family.

We were at a publishers meeting and he at a radiologists meeting.

While in Nashville we had conversations with Larry Nash, former Echo publisher, and also Jerry Whittle, a former general manager and managing editor of the Echo.

Both said to tell their friends hello in the Bay-Waveland and Hancock County areas.

Whittle is publisher of the newspaper in Thomson, Ga. and Nash is working at the daily newspaper in Bastrop, La.

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

JACKSON—To the British, 145 years is like a week, or a month, certainly in financial matters.

One of the black marks on Mississippi's financial history came back to haunt State Treasurer Bill Cole when he was in England two weeks ago to discuss the possibility of issuing Mississippi bonds in Europe.

The first thing the British bankers said to him was, "fine, but what are you going to do about those Union and Planters' Bank bonds?"

What they were talking about was the $5 million in bonds sold by the state of Mississippi in 1839 to establish the state-owned Union Bank and $2 million in bonds for the state-owned Planters' Bank.

Both the banks went sour, and amid a broiling political controversy between the Whigs and the Democrats, the Mississippi Legislature in 1842 had enacted a resolution prohibiting repayment of the bonds.

Most of the $7 million in bonds issued by the state had wound up in the hands of British banks, who were left holding the bag by the state's defaulting on their repayment.

To his amazement, Cole learned that the London-based Council of Foreign Bond Holders carries a dossier on the Mississippi bond default with all sorts of fascinating information contained therein.

Among the papers in the dossier is an 1839 letter from Daniel Webster saying the bonds were a legal obligation of Mississippi, an early day bond opinion to make them saleable to the British investors. In all likelihood, Webster was a friend of Nicholas Biddle, the early advocate of the Bank of the United States, who purchased the Mississippi bonds and resold them, mostly to foreign investors.

Ironically, $460,000 of the bonds had been bought by George Peabody, the education philanthropist who made gifts to build buildings on college campuses across the South following the Civil War. One such building still exists on the Ole Miss campus.

The $460,000 bonds were sent to the Mississippi Treasurer's office as a donation some 70 years ago, and are still in Cole's possession. If ever paid off, the proceeds are supposed to go to Ole Miss and Mississippi State University.

The Council of Foreign Bond Holders at last reading back in 1928 could locate only $2.8 million of the old Mississippi bonds.

Cole figures that if the existing bonds were paid off with principal and interest it would amount to $57 million. If the interest on the bonds were compounded, the tab would run better than $1 billion.

Actually, Cole believes that the British based Council would be willing to accept just a token settlement in order to get Mississippi off the list of bond defaulters it carries.

Also on the bad bond list are the Soviet Union and China. But while Cole was in London, the Soviet Union came in and paid off $45 million in bad bonds in order to get off the list.

The bad debt would not absolutely keep Mississippi from selling bonds in Europe now, Cole says, but it would mean that the Bank of England would object and prevent any British Banks from buying them. "That, of course, would be very bad publicity," says the state treasurer.

Ironically, the bond default by Mississippi came into play during the Civil War, according to a history, "Jacksonian Democracy in Mississippi," written by Edwin Arthur Miles and published by the University of North Carolina Press in 1960. Miles wrote that the "Mississippi Repudiation" was used by the Unionists to thwart Confederate attempts to secure foreign loans during the Civil War.

The burning issue in Mississippi back in the 1830's was the establishment of a state-owned bank which was seen as the salvation for the state's depressed economy. At the time Mississippi was an expanding state.

The Union Bank was created in 1838 with the board appointed by the Legislature, made up of state officeholders and politicians who were on the opposite side of the political fence from the governor.

The state level squabbling that went on back then seems vaguely familiar in 1986, as Bill Allain and Ed Pittman go at each other.

Before long, the Union Bank which was hailed as "the Bargain of 1839," began to wane after losing $15 a bale on cotton loans and being charged with making loans to directors and other favored persons.

The issue of repudiating the Union Bank bonds was decisive in the 1841 gubernatorial race, sweeping anti-bond Democrat Tilghman M. Tucker into office, and paving the way for the legislative action in 1842.

Cole admits he was caught by surprise that the Mississippi bond default has not been forgotten by the British financial markets.

"But when you're sitting in a 600 year old building discussing it, I guess 145 years doesn't seem so long," he said.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL PROVIDES BETTER GOVERNMENT COORDINATION

We will all be seeking better ways to use taxpayer dollars to make for more efficient delivery of services to the people.

The council is in no way planned to usurp the authority of any agency head. But many of these agency heads have decades of experience in state government. These collective years of experience can be put to use for the overall good of state government, instead of just one agency.

The members of the Council on Policy and Action are commissioner of Banking and Consumer Finance, director of Central Data Processing Authority, commissioner of corrections, director of Department of Economic Development, director of Employment Security Commission, director of Department of Energy and Transportation, director of Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, state fiscal officer, director of Division of General Services, state health officer, director of Division of Medicaid, director of Department of Mental Health, director of Bureau of Narcotics, director of Department of Natural Resources, state personnel officer, state superintendent of public education, commissioner of Public Safety, commissioner of Public Welfare, director of Research and Development Center, commissioner of Revenue, executive officer of Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning and executive officer of State Board of Community and Junior Colleges.

Tobacco claims more lives than cocaine, heroin, AIDS, traffic accidents, murder and terrorist attacks combined

"Tobaccoism is a disease like alcoholism. Its consequences are frequently cancer, emphysema and cardiovascular disease. But one cannot successfully combat these three without first tackling tobaccoism," says Dr. Francis E. LeJeune Jr., an Ochsner Clinic ear, nose and throat specialist.

The Ochsner Medical Institution has a long history of advocating the elimination of smoking. Dr. Alton Ochsner, one of its founding physicians, first made the connection between the incidence of lung cancer and smoking in the late 1930s.

Dr. LeJeune, whose father was also an Ochsner founder, says the fight against tobaccoism was given a recent boost by an editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association by Dr. Byron J. Bailey of the University of Texas.

"I hope more physicians and the general public will be aroused by the knowledge that tobaccoism, or addiction to tobacco, is our nation's most deadly and expensive health problem. It claims more lives and dollars than cocaine, heroin, AIDS, traffic accidents, murder and terrorist attacks combined," Dr. LeJeune points out.

"In addition to the war on cancer, stroke and heart disease, we should be waging a war on the causes of these diseases. Tobaccoism is a principle cause. If such a campaign had been launched in the 1960s, we would probably be noticing the early signs of cancer reduction by now. It is currently estimated that the citizens of this country are losing their lives to tobaccoism at the rate of 1,000 per day. At this rate we will lose six million lives during the next 16 years, a tragedy the size of the Holocaust," Dr. LeJeune explains.

How can this daily tragedy be halted? By the following action as soon as possible, he says.

1. A tax on tobacco products to equal the cost to our society which the use of those products is causing. The price of a package of cigarettes should be $2.60 if it had to reflect the cost to our economy of tobacco related disease.

2. The major portion of this tobacco tax revenue should be earmarked for research dealing with tobacco addiction.

3. The federal subsidization of the growing of tobacco should be eliminated. It is inappropriate for our government to encourage the production of a product which is so harmful to its citizens.

4. An intensive anti-smoking campaign must be launched by all appropriate agencies, especially the U.S. Public Health Service. This should target the groups selected by tobacco advertisers, women and young adults. There are no "safe" tobacco products.

5. Remove all tobacco advertising from the public media and discourage the glamorizing of tobacco use by celebrities and moviemakers.

6. Warning labels must be placed on all tobacco products.

7. Encourage insurance companies to recognize and reward non-smokers with lower premiums for health, driving, homeowners and general liability insurance coverage.

8. Restrict the sale of all tobacco products to individuals 19 years or older.

"The reduction in human misery and in health care costs will help our poverty level population the most while making a contribution to reducing our national debt. It's time to talk to your lawmaker and enlist him in the war on tobaccoism," Dr. LeJeune states.

FARMERS MARKET—Mrs. Doddie Ray, right, of Bay St. Louis checks the selection of produce being sold by Mrs. Rodney Reeves on Wednesday morning at the Hancock County Farmers Market. Vendor Gene Brophy is in the background. Even with the extra dry weather, local farmers are able to produce some fresh vegetables by using irrigation systems. Mrs. Reeves said her husband was at home working on some irrigation systems and Brophy stated he had a nice fall crop of tomatoes in his fields. The market is open on Saturday and Wednesday mornings at the Hancock County Fairgrounds on Longfellow Road. City farmer Joe Compretta was making his rounds in the Bay on Wednesday with fresh vegetables from his garden. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

American Heart Association offers CPR update

On August 9 the American Heart Association and the Mississippi Gulf Coast Emergency Medical Services District will be presenting new CPR/ECC standards and guidelines to CPR and ACLS instructors in South Mississippi.

These revisions were recommended at the 1985 National Conference on Standards and Guidelines for CPR and ECC, and have recently been published in a special issue of the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

All currently certified CPR instructors, instructor trainers and ACLS instructors must attend an update prior to December 31 or they will lose their certification.

This CPR/ECC Update will be from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Saturday, August 9 in the Fine Arts auditorium at the Jefferson Davis campus of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in Gulfport.

Registration will begin at 8 a.m. There will be representatives from companies present to demonstrate the newest training equipment available for instructing CPR.

For more information, or to pre-register for this free update, contact the EMS District office at 374-7433.

UNPLEASANTNESS

As Lord Peter Wimsey and his companions discover—just before dinner at the Bellona Club—that old General Fentiman has died right in his favorite armchair, the smell of a murder becomes aromatic, and Wimsey sets out to uncover just who checked old Fentiman out of the Bellona Club for good.

"The Unpleasantness at the Bellona Club" stars Ian Carmichael as Wimsey and can be seen on "Murder Most English" at 9 p.m.,

Thursdays, beginning July 31, on Mississippi ETV. The popular four-episode series was first seen on public television in 1973.

Fentiman is found dead early in the evening on Armistice Day, 1922. On the same day, the general's long-estranged sister, Lady Dormer, also dies. A strange twist to Fentiman's holiday death, however, is that the highly patriotic general was not wearing his poppy. Wimsey then realizes that the time factor in the case is of the utmost importance.

Diamondhead landowners to discuss mineral rights

"Mineral Rights in Mississippi" will be discussed at a Diamondhead Community Association meeting Friday at the Country Club.

Cocktails will be served at 5:30 p.m.; dinner at 6:30, and general meeting at 7:30.

Reservations are required. Guest speakers include Representative Margaret Tate of Picayune, Mineral Attorney Lee Parker and Association of Mississippi President Mike Harris.

The economic and environmental impact on the state and the current legislative status will be discussed, as well as Diamondhead's position with regard to those rights.

Bay Junior High students enjoy Art Day

"The children almost purred," said Bay Junior High teacher Doris Diamond, describing student reaction to Art Day.

Little wonder. Cleared of desks, Room 1 of the Ingram Building offered sixth graders a treasure trove of things to make and do.

Bright balls of yarn, baskets of feathers and dried weeds, jars of thick tempera paint, fat paint brushes, construction paper, glitter, felt-tip markers, popsicle sticks, toothpicks, and giant bottles of milk-white glue beckoned to young artists.

Appealing samples of artwork were displayed near each project center and parent-volunteers stood ready to help at a moment's notice.

At each change of class, entering students wasted little time in getting down to work.

They wound yarn on crossed sticks to form ojos (American Southwest Indian "God's eyes"), glued toothpicks across popsicle sticks and cut them into bony fish for mobiles, filled a space-black mural with fiery asteroids, made primitive, masklike "blot-art" paintings, wove bright swatches of cloth on a loom, and curled paper strips into perky snails.

So spellbound were they that a next-door teacher, concerned about the silence, came to see if the project had been cancelled.

No chance. Diamond, who claims to have no artistic skills herself, was determined to make the day as successful as possible, hoping that art can eventually become a regular part of the junior high curriculum.

"I knew the children needed hands-on art experience and that I wanted them to have choices as well as something to take home," she said, "but I didn't know what to do or how to do it, so I called people and just took one step at a time. It couldn't have happened without tremendous support from a lot of people."

Principal W. J. Cameron readily approved the project (and was discovered during first period perched on a stool in the corner constructing his own toothpick fish.)

Artist Carol Vegas immediately took the project to heart and provided hours-worth of planning and supervision, as well as materials and weaving samples.

Volunteers Pat Barber, Linda Gordon, Roberta Harvill, Candace Latino, Tina Secrest, Peggy Smith, and Raine Strom supplied a ready store of how-to's and how-well-you-did's that kept kids beaming from ear to ear all day and proved the value of parent involvement in schools.

Bay Junior High Home Economics teacher Marilyn Bailey lent her loom, Industrial Arts instructor Billy Power cut hundreds of ojo-sticks and 7th grade student Leslie Diamond fastened the sticks together in spite of her dog Samantha's best efforts to eat them.

By close of day, purring had turned to triumphant cries of "Look what I made!" Diamond looked as cheerfully smug as the cat that just ate the canary. Quoted she, "I just love it when a plan comes together."

Space mural is designed by Bay Junior High sixth graders, assisted by Pat Barber.

Board adopts 'no frills' budget

A no-frills budget of $21 million has been adopted by trustees at Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College in the wake of spending cuts that total some $2 million and include the elimination of 48 positions.

The unanimous action by the board on Wednesday drew praise from MGJC President Barry L. Mellinger; "I am delighted that they (the trustees) agreed with the administration's recommendations and approved a budget for fiscal 1986-87 that preserves the educational integrity of the college."

Mellinger said the budget "was six months in planning and involved board members every step of the way. We had no choice but to take drastic measures to cover the loss of $1.8 million in state funds and reductions in other revenue," he added.

To make up the deficit, blamed in part on a decline in enrollment, Mellinger said some personnel were laid off and positions of others who retired or resigned were not filled. This resulted in a savings of about $1.5 million.

An additional $960,000 was saved by reducing supply, equipment and travel budgets and by canceling liability insurance and a private audit.

To bring in new revenue, the board earlier agreed to raise tuition from $250 to $300 a semester for full-time students (those taking 12 or more hours). The cost for part-time students was hiked from $30 to $35 a semester hour and for out-of-staters from $450 to $500 a semester.

"Even with the increases, tuition at MGJC is still only about half of what it is at other colleges in our district (of Harrison, Jackson, George and Stone counties)," Mellinger said.

He said the college "was able to hold the line on other costs to students and did not raise dormitory costs (at Perkinston campus) or book rental fees."

Nor did the cutbacks include any salary reductions, although some personnel will be required to work longer hours and others will have their contracts shortened during the summer months.

Mellinger, describing the budget as "tight," said the balance is expected to amount to only about $36,000. "That leaves us no room for error," he observed.

Elementary students participate in 'Reading is Fundamental' program

A number of Charles B. Murphy and Gulfview Elementary second grade students received reading awards recently from the Bay St. Louis Junior Auxiliary as part of its "Reading is Fundamental" program.

The "Rip Roaring Reader" awards were distributed to 21 Gulfview youngsters and to all 25 Murphy second graders after the children completed a three-book reading "challenge" made by the auxiliary.

The award winners were recognized for their enthusiasm for reading rather than academic skill, according to Margaret Adam, auxiliary project chairman. The reading program is designed to stimulate and encourage reading among young students.

"We try to demonstrate the pleasure of reading by presenting books as entertainment," said Mrs. Adam. "Then we push the children to meet a goal to win an award, and, of course, we depend on the teachers and parents to provide motivation as well."

The auxiliary also provided a book for each second grader at both schools.

Marine industry training available

Applications for a Basic Marine Training program are being accepted by the State of Louisiana, and will be conducted by the Louisiana Marine & Petroleum Institute in Houma, La.

This Basic Marine Training course is 13 weeks in length.

Under the open enrollment program, new trainees can be enrolled every Monday. Upon completion, trainee is referred to marine companies for employment and on-the-job training.

Trained personnel have a definite advantage in obtaining work in the marine labor market. LaMPI trainees have consistently been able to obtain employment during their on-the-job training (OJT). Applicants must be 16 years of age. A high school diploma is not required but at least a 9th grade mathematic and reading level is needed to ensure success in both the training program and Coast Guard testing procedures.

Advanced training leading to a marine license as a Deck or Engineering specialist is also available at LaMPI. The thirteen weeks of Basic Marine Training is a required pre-requisite for these advanced programs which total two years, including the Basic Training.

These training programs are Coast Guard approved, which shortens the time required to obtain various certificates or licenses from the Coast Guard. All programs include OJT while employed aboard vessels of various companies.

For the advanced programs 1365 hours of training at LaMPI and approximately one year of OJT are required. This training is divided into phases with the trainee alternating several times between the school and OJT. While on OJT the trainee earns the standard wage for the position he holds and completes assigned job tasks for his OJT.

Additionally the United States Coast Guard has recently granted "approval" to the "Radar Observer" courses offered by LaMPI. U.S. marine regulations require completion of an approved Radar Observer course to legally operate any offshore vessel of 300 Gross Tons or over.

The Institute is a Louisiana Vocational-Technical Schol. Fees and tuition total $435 for the Basic Marine Training course and $125 & $107.50 for the original and renewal Radar Observer courses respectively.

Books and supplies must be purchased by the trainee who must also arrange living accommodations since the school does not presently have dormitories.

LaMPI follows a strict policy of non-discrimination for race, creed, sex, national origin or qualified handicap. Financial assistance is available to all persons who meet eligibility requirements for JTPA, VA or other financial aid programs.

Persons desiring to pre-register, should call 504-851-3266, to request an Application for Admission, or visit the school at the end of Dickson Road between 8 and 4 weekdays.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

Q: My husband was ordered by the court to pay his ex-wife $300 per month for child support. Now he has been laid off from his job and cannot afford to pay her. What should we do? Can his ex-wife have him put in jail for not being able to pay?

A: Under Mississippi law, your husband's duty to pay child support continues unchanged until the court that ordered the amount of child support changes its order. He should immediately file papers in court to have his child support reduced or suspended until he can return to work.

If he does not do so, his ex-wife may file suit against him asking the court to find him in contempt for not paying.

The court will give her a judgment for all due and unpaid support, and may impose a fine and a jail term on your husband. He may also be ordered to pay all court costs and his ex-wife's attorney's fees.

Time is important in this situation, and your husband should contact an attorney right away.

Q: I have had to go to court or contact a lawyer for back child support four times in the last three or four years. My ex-husband says he does not have to pay because our daughter spent most of the summer with our relatives. He is now three months behind in payments. Can he get away with this?

A: Unless the support order makes a specific provision for suspending the child support payments when the child is not in your physical custody, your ex-husband must make the support payments even when your daughter was staying with the relatives.

Q: I received a bill from a local department store for clothing purchased by my husband. I paid the bill by check, however, without my knowledge, my husband had written several checks. The department store check bounced. The store wrote me a nasty letter saying that unless I paid immediately, plus a ten dollar charge for the returned check, they would file charges with the district attorney. I intend to pay them, but I was upset by their letter. What should I do?

A: Mississippi law provides that criminal charges for a "bad check" may be brought only when there is a simultaneous exchange of the "bad check" for goods or services. The issuance of a "bad check" for a past due obligation has not been a criminal offense in Mississippi.

However, beginning on January 1, 1984, issuing such a check may constitute a crime. Still, in any case, there must be fraudulent intent and knowledge of insufficient funds in the account in order for a crime to have been committed. There is presently no statutory authority for a $10 service charge, but beginning January 1, 1984, the law specifically provides for such a charge if the check is not paid by you within fifteen (15) days of the "nasty letter," the law presumes the fraudulent intent and knowledge of insufficient funds.

McDonald has long been active in the Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation, the Long Beach and Pass Christian Chambers of Commerce and the Area III Special Olympics.

As MAS president, McDonald will represent the association at various functions around the state and will have an important leadership role in its lobbying efforts. He also will serve as the county government representative on several state boards and commissions.

"We are fortunate to have a man of Billy McDonald's caliber in our association's top office," MAS Executive Director Eddie Washington said. "We are confident that as president he will help us achieve many of our goals for improving county government to better serve all Missisippians."

"If we take this organization seriously, this organization can have a serious impact," McDonald stated in his opening address to the group.

McDonald plans to ask the MAS executive director and the three regional vice-presidents to meet at least once each month in Jackson during his term as president.

"Our principle task will be to determine ways we can best use the collective wisdom and experience of our membership to mutual advantage," McDonald said. "We'll investigate ways to provide quick practical assistance and information to individual boards of supervisors."

"I will ask each regional vice-president to act as a conduit through which the particular problems of the supervisors in his jurisdiction can be brought to our attention for action," McDonald added.

Serving as regional vice-presidents for the Mississippi Association of Supervisors July 1986-July 1987 are: Ikie Ethridge, Lauderdale county, first vice-president; Horace Mathews, Panola County, second vice-president; and John Sumrall, Jones County, third vice-president.

"I think it's time we all realized we all live in the same county. This thing of always having three entities — those days are gone," Kellar commented.

"We are not trying to hurt law enforcement in this county. We know you need more people."

Some of the questions Peterson asked that the task force address included how the city and justice court systems would be affected, whether consolidation would result in some lay-offs, and whether record-keeping can be consolidated.

The supervisors will set a time for the task force's first meeting when the appointments are completed.

Richard Thomas said that he and fellow directors had expected and prepared for a 10 percent budget cut.

"We heard rumors there would be a 10 percent across the board cut. We were waiting for that," he said.

Although he had not yet received any notification of the supervisors' decision, Thomas issued a statement about an hour after the meeting was over.

"First of all, the qualification that we have equal representation on the chamber board is impossible since the chamber board is elected by the membership," he explained.

"We can not guarantee that we would have equal representation with that type of election."

He explained that the chamber presently has more members from the Bay, Waveland and Diamondhead areas because most businesses are concentrated there, but businesses in the county are also solicited for membership.

"It is my understanding that they believe the chamber is being used for political purposes, but our bylaws specifically prohibit that."

Thomas added.

"At the time the unit system was brought up, we were working with the board in a spirit of cooperation. In any of our discussions with the committee, the rural people were represented."

He said he has been involved in the chamber for more than 15 years and funding has always been based on a set millage levied by the county.

"We certainly do not want to split this county along city and rural lines," he added.

"We didn't take the initiative on this unit-system thing. The supervisors were the ones who wanted to put it to a vote."

"The chamber's goal is to promote quality of life in the entire county and that takes the cooperation of members and local governments."

"We are disappointed that there wasn't more of a spirit of cooperation in this thing."

He said the chamber may have to ask its members to make up some of the cut in county funds if the cities can not assume the full $9,400 each that Courge has proposed.

tion on the cafeteria.

Diboll said Tuesday that she had expected to talk to Gex and Assistant Superintendent Robert Magee, who had assisted in the inspection, and "was surprised to see the other board members there."

Monday night, however, she answered Noonan with the statement, "There was no meeting."

"As board president, there are many things I must sign and many times I must discuss business with our attorney. It is not unusual for me to go to his office," Diboll added.

Penrose also said she went to the office to pick up the information on the cafeteria inspection.

"They said Thursday night that some way would have to be arranged so we could get copies of the report and study it before the meeting," she explained.

Gex said Tuesday morning that he did "just what we said we would do when we recessed Thursday night" and called the three board members to his office at the same time for convenience of two administrators involved.

One of the administrators, Bay High Principal Frank Ladner, was questioned by Noonan and responded, "It was a conference."

On Tuesday morning, Ladner, Magee and District Business Manager Garland Cuevas said they had been summoned by Gex Friday afternoon to provide information on the kitchen inspection.

The two administrators were involved in the inspection. Cuevas said he provided financial information regarding their findings, which indicated some equipment would have to be leased or purchased.

Gex said that he also briefed the three board members on the emergency leasing statute he had found, emphasizing the need for Monday night's meeting.

"We all proceeded to meet at my office. The three board members arrived at different times," the attorney said.

"No official business took place. It was not a meeting, in my mind, of any kind."

He said he had expected to "straighten the matter out" with a public announcement of the conference Monday night, but decided not to do so because he felt "the spectators would make something sinister out of it" after hearing four speakers call for resignations and a fifth plead that the board cooperate with Oge.

He also questioned Noonan's allegation that a petition signed by about 105 people had originated at the Friday conference.

Nearly all signers of the petition noted that they were Waveland residents or were parents or grandparents of Waveland Elementary School students and were requesting that St. Rose not be used and that trailers be purchased instead.

Administrators have indicated if trailers would be purchased for kindergarten classrooms and located on the Waveland Elementary campus.

"Not one word was mentioned. None of us heard about that until Monday," Gex said.

The attorney said he did not feel that he and the board members had not violated the state's open meetings law.

"If one wanted to be hypertechnical, I could very easily have asked two board members to come at 3 p.m. and one to come at 4 p.m. to satisfy the purists," Gex said.

Three members constitutes a quorum for the five member board. He said the law even supports the Friday gathering because it contains a clause allowing board members the right to communicate with their employees without calling a meeting.

Gex also specifically stated that he, and not Diboll, had arranged the conference. He said that briefing the board members on the kitchen report and leasing law would have taken "two to three hours" in a public meeting where spectators might object.

Gex said he had become very "pessimistic" about expediting needed actions providing for implementation of kindergarten.

"As public officials you have to take a lot, but I don't believe that insults and abuse are right at any public meeting. There is a right to free speech, but do we have to put up with that?"

"Even when you do what they want, they insult you and abuse you, and I don't see how in that climate you can get anything done."

He defined "they" as a well-organized group of individuals who have been attending board meetings for the eight years he has served as school board attorney.

On Monday, Diboll had stated for the benefit of spectators that had not attended previous meetings that the board members have also been getting support through letters and telephone calls approving of their actions.

Gex said he feels the support is coming from individuals rather than an organizations, but said that those opposing the board are "very well-organized."

"These people have always expressed opposition to practically everything the board has done. They may be right a lot of the time, but they are not right all the time," the attorney said.

The board is presently scheduled to meet again Aug. 11 at 7 p.m., but a special meeting may be called prior to that date if action is needed after the attorney general's opinion is obtained.

Bird hunters association to show dog training film

The South Mississippi Bird Hunters Association will show a video tape, "Training Pointing Dogs Featuring Bob West" Tuesday 8 p.m., Best Western-Gulfport Inn, US-90, Gulfport.

Applicable to pointing dogs of all ages and in all stages of development, "Training Pointing Dogs..." breaks a training program down into easily understood segments. Beginning with the basic commands and single introductions to the gun, birds, and water, professional trainer West explains and demonstrates each command, how to communicate it, and how to enforce it, culminating with advanced lessons in training steadiness to wing and shot.

The segments include the steps involved in developing a finished pointing dog. The need for consistency, repetition and control in all phases of training is emphasized, as is the importance of the command "Whoa!" and its crucial role in nearly all aspects of a pointing dog's performance.

West has been training, competing with, and testing pointing dogs for twenty years. He owns and operates Napsinakee Kennel in LeClaire, Iowa, and serves on the board of directors of the North American Versatile Hunting Dog Association.

Anyone interested in birds, dogs, hunting, or the outdoors and fellowship is welcomed. Come, bring a friend, participate. No obligations. Phone 832-5584.

USM has new AD

HATTIESBURG—Bill McLellan is the new athletic director at the University of Southern Mississippi. USM president Aubrey K. Lucas made the announcement at a recent campus news conference.

McLellan, 54, is best known for the leadership that propelled Clemson University from the athletic doldrums to the very pinnacle of soundness and success. He also is recognized as an administrator committed to both athletic and academic excellence.

Addressing the news conference, Dr. Lucas said, "Bill McLellan brings a set of competencies and experiences which this institution needs. We wanted someone who could hit the ground running, and who could build on the impressive achievements of Roland Dale and Reed Green before him, and we have found him."

Born in Hamer, S.C. one of seven children, McLellan graduated from Dillon High School and attended Clemson on scholarship, graduating with both a BS in 1954 and MS in 1956. Though insisting that he was not a very good athlete, he was a member of Clemson's 1952 Gator Bowl team and lettered in both 1953 and 1954.

He served first on the University's academic staff in the college of Agricultural Sciences joined the athletic department in 1958, was appointed assistant athletic director in 1966 and was elevated to athletic director in 1971 when Frank Howard resigned.

Much of his reputation for growth and excellence has been gained since.

As he charted a course for athletic excellence in 1971, Clemson's famed IPTAY was providing $400,000 annually for scholarships. Today that figure exceeds $5 million a year for student-athlete scholarships as well as for scholastic and academic enrichment.

At Clemson, he put together a unique blend of private support, gate receipts and a consortium arrangement with South Carolina banks to make Clemson facilities, staff and successes second to none.

Once in the red, Clemson's program now is totally self-sustaining and has made numerous grants to enhance the University's scholarship and academic enrichment programs.

Other McLellan accomplishments include serving on numerous committees at both the conference and national levels, serving the NCAA, CFA and other athletic organizations in a variety of capacities, serving as both deacon and elder in the Presbyterian Church, serving as vice president of the South Carolina Jaycees, election to Clemson's most prestigious service fraternity, Tiger Brotherhood, special dispensation member of Pi Kappa Alpha National Fraternity, member of Clemson's Block C Lettermen's Club, recipient of Clemson's 42,000 member alumni association's highest award, the Alumni Distinguished Service Award and recipient of South Carolina's highest state recognition for an individual, the Order of the Palmetto.

He has been married to Ann Rogers of Fork, S.C. since 1954, and the couple has four children, Suzy (Mrs. Steve Cato), a Winthrop alumna; Bill and Cliff, both Clemson alumni; and Arch Anna, a Winthrop graduate.

SPORTS from the Pressbox

After winning second place at the Meadowlands Grand Prix, Emerson Fittipaldi was extremely anxious to race on another competitive course at Cleveland. Being one of the best drivers in a world class automobile racing series like CART means spending lots of time in airports.

Fittipaldi, 39, driver of the Marlboro/Patrick Racing Team March 86C, was eager to improve his eighth-place finish of last year. According to Fittipaldi, airport racing provides its own special problems. Unlike conventional road or street circuits where there are hills, buildings, or bridges that drivers can use to help them set up their line into the corner, those things don't exist at the Burke Lakefront Airport at Cleveland.

Before this year's race Fittipaldi explained to reporters that another obstacle to overcome in order to do well at airport racing in addition to the lack of landmarks are the runways. The car's suspension has to be perfectly tuned in order to compensate for the inconsistencies of the airport runways. Fittipaldi explained, "You have to compromise with them. The car's suspension has to be stiff enough not to hit the ground, but it can't be too stiff because of the bumps from the runways to the taxiways."

Although Fittipaldi cites the difficulties with road circuits, they are still his favorite. "I am most comfortable on the road circuits, like those at Cleveland," Fittipaldi said. "I'm getting more used to the ovals, like the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, but I always feel more at home on the road circuits."

Last year, Fittipaldi qualified sixth fastest and ran a consistent race. Engine problems, a broken cylinder valve, at the end pushed him back to eighth.

This year engine problems again caused the demise of the Fittipaldi team. After holding the lead for the first 28 laps, he ran a very competitive race until he blew his engine

Engineer Corps invites travelers to Georgia

MOBILE, Ala.—The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reports Lake Lanier in the foothills of the Georgia Blue Ridge Mountains offers travelers camping, boating, picnicking, fishing, skiing and sight-seeing.

Lake Lanier, on the Chattahoochee River, is one of America's favorite lakes. With about 16 million visitors a year, this Corps of Engineers lake managed by the Mobile District, is the most popular of all Corps-operated lakes.

The Corps operates 33 day-use parks and 13 campgrounds at Lake Lanier.

In addition, the State of Georgia runs a resort complex on Lake Lanier Islands, and numerous other city and county parks surround the lake.

There are also various concessions about the lakes, including the largest floating marina in the world.

Corps Day-Use Parks
Day-use parks are open from 7 a.m. until 10 p.m. Boat launching is allowed all hours. Most parks have picnic tables, grills, restrooms and designated swimming areas, and admission to these parks is free.

Picnic pavilions that can seat up to 60 people are available at West Bank, Upper Overlook, and Van Pugh Parks.

They may be reserved by contacting the Corps Resource Manager's Office at (404) 945-9531. A $25 reservation fee is charged. Pavilions are available on a first-come basis at Young Deer Creek and Mary Alice Parks.

Corps Campgrounds
Campers may enjoy the luxury of fully-developed campgrounds with water and electric hookups, group camping areas, and shower-washhouses. Or they may choose to rough it at primitive campgrounds. A number of the campgrounds have park attendants on duty to assist visitors.

These campgrounds are open from March through October. Park gates open at 7 a.m. and close at 10:30 p.m. Campsites are available on a first-come basis and are limited to eight people to a site. Rates range from $4 a night at primitive campgrounds to $9 for sites with hookups.

Campground telephone numbers include Bald Ridge, 889-1591;

Camping is prohibited in non-designated areas such as on the lake's shoreline, in day-use parks and on the islands.

Lake Lanier Islands
The major resort area on the lake is Lanier Islands. Encompassing 1,200 acres, the islands feature a quarter-mile sand beach, hotel, 18-hole golf course, campground and boat rental. For more information, contact P.O. Box 605, Buford, Ga. 30518, or telephone (404) 945-6701.

Wildlife Department names law enforcement chief

JACKSON — Dan Tullos of Magee has been named as the new chief of law enforcement for the Mississippi Department of Wildlife Conservation. Tullos replaces Philip Strong of Hazlehurst who recently retired.

Tullos, 49, has been an employee of the wildlife department since 1969. He began his service as a conservation officer in Simpson County, and since then has served as a district supervisor, chief investigator, and assistant chief.

A graduate of Magee High School, Tullos helped form a recent undercover operation that has arrested and prosecuted game law violators across Mississippi.

The result of the operation has been to put a number of professional market hunters out of business, enhance protection of fish and wildlife, and make conservation enforcement less demanding on local county conservation officers.

BOUDREAUX CITED
The Department of Wildlife Conservation has honored those state conservation enforcement officers who have been outstanding in their field.

Selected as statewide conservation officer of the year is John Keenan. A 10-year veteran with the wildlife department, Keenan is assigned to Jasper County.

Officers of the year for their respective districts are: Charlie Higginbotham, Noxubee County; Mike Jenkins, Coahoma County; Eli Whitaker, Wilkinson County; Michael Everett, Jackson County; and Henry Boudreaux of Hancock County with the Bureau of Marine Resources.

Officers were selected for outstanding contributions to the field of conservation enforcement, cooperation, hard work, care of equipment, and pride in a job well done.

SUMMER PEAK FISHING TIPS

One of my most recent columns dealt with the pre-summer period of the fish calendar. This week, I'd like to cover the summer period — perhaps one of the toughest times of year for anglers to catch bass.

The two most important elements to remember about any cycle are: 1) water temperature and 2) developing food chain and weed growth. No matter what time of year you're on the water, ask yourself questions about the water temperature, weed growth and the food chain, and you can pretty well determine where the bass will and will not be.

In the northern part of the country, there is a two-week period of activity in which the bass hold to their normal locational patterns but are very active. This period usually occurs just after the first hot weather spell.

The further south you live, the less this is true. For instance, in Missouri, the entire month of July is fabulous for catching bucketmouths. But in Wisconsin, you might have 10-14 days of this "summer peak."

For natural lake fishing during this time of year, there is going to be a lot of cover, according to Linda England, Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. The angler ought to give more attention to cover, wind direction, and position of the sun and/or shade.

In heat, shade becomes an important factor. You're also going to concentrate more on the pH of the water. This is the time of year that underwater vegetation blooms and grows, so more oxygen will be given off, and this alters the pH level.

What we're talking about with pH levels is the acidity and alkalinity of the water. There are 14 steps in this measurement with 7 being neutral, those numbers below 7 show increasing acidity, and those numbers above 7 increasing alkalinity.

The pH levels also measure the hydrogen-ion concentration; where there is little oxygen in the water, there is more acid, and where there is more oxygen in the water there is more alkalinity. Bass shy away from acidic waters.

For river fishing, shade and sun direction is important. But, try to find a feeder creek which has a better pH level than the river itself. Look at the current and pay special attention to where that current is flowing. In the summer peak, the bass are more active and tend to feed actively on breaklines adjacent to that creek.

For man-made impoundments, England stresses that during the summer peak period and as the summer wears on, bass will be holding or gathering on structure near the old river channel.

This structure is comprised of humps, ridges and drop-offs. Don't rule out shallow waters where there are brush piles — bass are notorious for gathering in these brush piles.

Again, concentrate on current, wind and sun direction: if you can find an upstream, windy, shady cover spot, you've found an ideal place for bass during the summer peak!

Some of the best lures to use during this period include the Texas-rigged Plastic Worm, the Do-Nothing Worm, jigs and frogs, spinnerbaits for shallow water especially in the early morning and late evening, and deep-diving crankbaits for medium-range structure in 8-15 feet of water.

Some pros recommend other lures such as topwater plugs and spoons, jig and eel/minnow combinations, spoons and buzzbaits. Generally speaking, the retrieval ought to be quick.

Summer is camping time

Keep food safe

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Summer is vacation time and camping is a popular vacation for many families. To be safe, families should keep in mind some basic principles of food safety, according to Barbara P. McLaurin, a food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Anytime you're away from the convenience of a kitchen, food safety is going to be a bit more difficult," Ms. McLaurin said. "Camping does pose special food safety problems, but you can plan ahead to solve them."

Ms. McLaurin provided the following ideas on keeping camp food safe.

Lack of refrigeration is the major problem. Even on a short, overnight trip, cooler space will be limited. Fresh meat and poultry, milk, butter and eggs must be kept cold.

If the trip involves several meals — supper the first night, plus meals and snacks the following day, don't take any more ice-requiring foods than can be used early in the trip.

In hot weather (80 degrees Fahrenheit or over), be especially careful with foods in the ice chest.

* In the car going to the campsite, put the ice chest in the passenger section. It's much cooler than the trunk.

* Fresh meat and poultry dishes can be enjoyed the first night, even in warm weather, if they are partially thawed for cooking, or pre-cooked and frozen for re-heating. For example, frozen hamburger patties are good to bring from home.

* Bacon, lunch meat or hotdogs can be taken for the second day in cooler outside weather (under 80°F). If there are still chunks of ice in the cooler water when you're ready to use the meat, it is still cold enough to be safe.

* Remember that fresh fish is highly perishable. After cleaning, wash fish thoroughly. Cook immediately or wrap tightly and keep in the cooler with ice for no longer than 24 hours.

* Another way to keep the ice chest cool is to wrap the cooler in newspapers and put it in a sleeping bag in the shade while you're hiking, fishing or boating, Ms. McLaurin said.

For use later in the trip, use camp food that doesn't need ice. This includes canned meat and fish, canned meat and vegetable soups and stews, and such old standbys as peanut butter, and dry and cooked cereals.

Camping stores also have a wide variety of dehydrated foods — dried meat sticks, dried fruit and nut mixes for trail snacks, and even whole dried dinners. For beef stew from a pouch, for instance, just add boiling water.

"Probably the second toughest camping problem is how to cope without reliable tap water," Ms. McLaurin said. "Using bottled water for drinking or mixing with food is a good solution."

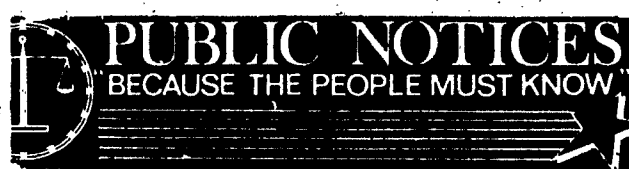

Because stream and river water may contain viruses and bacteria, it must be treated before using for drinking or cooking. Boil it for 15 minutes or use commercial purification tablets.

After boiling, let the water stand for 30 minutes so mud and twigs settle to the bottom. Dip out and strain through a clean cloth before using.

Follow package directions carefully when using purification tablets.

When cooking meat, poultry or fish over an outside fire, cook it thoroughly and serve it hot to kill any food poisoning bacteria present.

Generally, red meat should be cooked until all the pink is gone, poultry until there is no red in the joints, and fish until flaky.

Section 11-30: Covering of Dumpsters

(a) All dumpsters or containers for the bulk disposal of trash, refuse, or garbage, shall be covered with a lid or suitable protection to prevent blowing or scattering of contents, unless a waiver is granted under the terms hereinafter provided.

(b) The owners, operators, and users of all dumpsters or containers are notified with lids or coverings shall keep them in a closed position unless the dumpsters or containers are being loaded or unloaded. Section 11-31: Waiver of Requirement for Dumpster Covering

(a) Upon application by an owner, operator, or user of a dumpster, the mayor or his designee may waive the requirements of Section 11-30, based on the following considerations:

1. Whether dumpster is used for bagged or loose materials.

2. The dumpster's location characteristics, considering wind, adjacency to nearby residents, frequency of use, and pick up and physical screening.

3. Whether covering a dumpster would result in an increase in adjacent littering problems.

4. Hardship conditions, such as for the handicapped and elderly.

(b) Waivers from the requirements of Section 11-30 are hereby granted for the following types of dumpsters and containers:

1. Those placed by the city or its agents intended for general public use.

2. Those set up for temporary use at a construction or demolition site.

3. Containers placed for temporary use of fairs, carnivals, parades, and similar public events.

(c) A waiver of the covering requirements of Section 11-30 shall not be construed as relieving an owner, operator, or user of a dumpster or container from the responsibility for any waste or refuse blown or spilled from the dumpster or container.

Section 11-31: That all Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

National Hairdressers group presents '86 fall fashions

HairAmerica, the fashion arm of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association, premiered its hair fashion trend for the Fall/Winter '86 season at its recent national convention in Washington, D.C.

Jim Lee, member of the 1986 Fall/Winter Design Team, says, "Never before has hair and fashion been so interdependent. Hair design is an extension of the fashion industry. We work together, we are a collaboration. Our clients benefit from our complementary expertise."

Men's stylist Daniel Ruidant says, "We don't consciously design hair trends. We create style. Style doesn't miss and people are sophisticated enough to know it when they see it. We find a way to make it possible and then we make it available."

The five major looks of the 1986 Collection for Fall/Winter are:

THE CROUPIER— Unabashed confidence is the message of this handsome men's cut. Whether for play or for work, it spells winner. This one cut can be worn ruffled or sleek, with very little fuss, thanks to understated geometry of design and interior texturizing.

THE ENTERTAINER— This cut for the adventurous man says savoir faire, no matter what the situation, due to expert and innovative shape. It's tailor-made to fit the face and perfect geometry is the key word. Which leads to a very natural geometric progression of lines and angles with which to work.

THE CLASSIC— A shapely long geometric cut with deliberate softness, a classical form that gives textural interest to the silhouette. The jagged edges give hair ends a bend at the bottom for natural movement, enhanced further by color highlights on fringed bang area to act as a focal point in the design.

THE COSMOPOLITAN— Versatility and simplicity for the busy woman, a total image easily achieved with this volumized mid-length cut, made special by the attention given to the face-flattering benefits of a fringe. Designed with fashion and lifestyle in mind.

THE CELEBRITY— Strong but feminine, functional yet dramatic, this short cut can adapt to the lifestyle of any woman of any age. The rounded geometric shape is cut vertically with a razor to achieve maximum mobility, and can be easily converted to a sleek look with hair extensions. This look reflects the dramatic influence of television's night-time soaps.

4-H HORTICULTURE CONTEST

The Hancock County 4-H Horticulture Contest was held recently for Senior 4-H members. The contest involved identifying 25 plant specimens chosen from cut flowers, fruits, vegetables, potted plants and ornamentals. It also involved judging 2 classes of 4 plates of vegetables and fruits for quality, and taking a 25 question test on general horticulture knowledge taken from 4-H and Extension publications.

Pam Ladner was the high scoring individual with Stanley Jordan, Vincent Cuevas and Sherry Shaw all qualifying for our county team. They will participate in the state horticulture contest to be held at 4-H Congress in June.

Other teams who will participate in Club Congress are Forestry, Rifle and Entomology. The members of the Forestry team are Michael Seal, Sharon Koenen, Paula Spivey and Leigh Jones. Members of the rifle team include Tracy Alinsworth, Larry Koenen, Drew Smith and William Moran. The Entomology contest will have two individual contestants Dana Moran and Lorraine Williams.

We would like to thank Mrs. Suzette Burton for her assistance all year long, Mr. Lee Taylor, Hancock County Agent for his assistance in training the horticulture team and Mr. David Watts, Hancock County Forester, for his assistance in training the Forestry team.

4-H POULTRY CHAIN

The 4-H Poultry Chain has regained its popularity after the avian flu outbreak of the past two years. This year's poultry chain was sponsored by Coast Electric Power Association and the Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association. Ten 4-H members in eight families have received a total of 250 chicks to raise and show at the County Fair in November.

Bike Trek '86 set for September

Your bicycle, good companions, beautiful Mississippi countryside and helping a worthy cause are ingredients for an exciting and rewarding mini-vacation!!

Sound good? You bet!! It is also an apt description of Bike Trek '86, the second annual cycling event sponsored by the Mississippi Lung Association to raise funds to continue and expand "life and breath-saving" services in Mississippi.

Bike Trek '86 will be held Saturday and Sunday, September 20 and 21 with headquarters and accommodations at beautiful Roosevelt State Park in Morton, Mississippi. Trekkers will enjoy a different loop ride each day from the park with meals, refreshment stops, lodging and biking aid provided.

"Bike Trek '85, held last September in Southwest Mississippi and on the Natchez Trace, had 76 trekkers who raised over $16,000 to support MLA patient services and medical research," said Mrs. Johnnie Tolleson of Kosciusko, MLA president. "This year, we are expecting 150 trekkers to participate and project raising over $30,000 for lung health service programs."

Cyclists, novice to expert, from age 16 to senior citizens, can participate, enjoy the fun-filled weekend, earn terrific prizes and help support MLA programs. Participants should register early to meet fund-raising requirements. Registrants will receive useful biking information through MLA Trek newsletters prior to the event.

The first place prize for the top fund raiser will be two round trip airline tickets anywhere in the continental U.S.A., Canada, Bahamas, or Caribbean, generously donated by Eastern Air Lines. Many other valuable prizes will also be awarded.

Anyone interested in riding or pledging support, is urged to contact the Mississippi Lung Association office, P. O. Box 9865, Jackson, Ms 39206 or phone 362-0438 for more information or entry forms.

River schedule reported

POPLARVILLE...Pearl River College's required orientation for freshman and transfer students will be held Monday, August 18 at 8:30 a.m. in Marvin R. White Coliseum.

Registration for sophomores begins at the same time in the Academic Building, according to a published registration schedule.

Freshman, transfer and former students will begin registration Monday afternoon (August 18) at 1:30 p.m. The 1986 fall semester registration for Mississippi's pioneer junior college will continue through Tuesday and until 10 a.m. Wednesday, August 20.

All new academic and technical students must have their ACT scores on file before registering at Pearl River College. The ACT Residual will be administered at 8:15 a.m. on Tuesday, August 19 in the Science Building.

Registration for the fall semester will close at 11 a.m. Wednesday, August 20 and late registration will start at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, August 21. Classes will begin Thursday at 8:15 a.m.

"Registration is a very important aspect of getting off to a good school year," said Dr. Willis Lott, dean of Academic Affairs. "That's why it is necessary that we have a registration schedule to insure an orderly and fair registration system."

Students may register after but not prior to the scheduled time. "We realize many of our students work and or commute with other students, but we will not be able to accommodate students who wish to register early," Lott said.

The following is the 1986 Pearl River College registration schedule.

Libraries offer information for prospective college students

All branches of the Hancock County Library System have available to the public two brochures of interest to prospective college students, according to Stacie Browne, Reference Librarian.

"The Student Guide: Give Federal Aid Programs 1986-87" and "Application for Federal Student Aid 1986-87 School Year" are available at the Kila, Waveland, and Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Libraries.

Browne also notes that the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library maintains a special college-career collection that includes other information on financial aid, colleges, universities, and trade schools.

In addition, an information file has been established on careers and vocations and the library has available catalogs on microfiche for major U.S. colleges and universities and all Southeastern regional institutions.

For more information, contact Browne at the headquarters library, 467-5262.

Murdock selected as governor's scholar

Coast Episcopal Schools reports the selection of Margaret Murdock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Murdock of Gulfport, as a Governor's Scholar for the 1986 session of The Mississippi Governors School.

The Governor's School is a residential honors program established in 1961 on the campus of the Mississippi University for Women. The school is designed to provide academic, creative, and leadership experiences for a limited number of rising high school juniors or seniors who have demonstrated exceptional ability and achievement in their studies and who show high intellectual and creative potential.

Eligible students must be nominated by their high school principal. Once nominated, all candidates are carefully screened by a panel of distinguished educators, and selections are based on the panel's recommendations.

Murdock is president of the junior class, Coast president of the National Honor Society, vice president of the German Club, member of Mu Alpha Theta, the Annual staff, and the Quiz Bowl team.

She participated in the International Youth Year Conference 1985 and the Presidential Classroom 1986. She is a member of the Society of Distinguished American High School Students.

David Culley named Academic All-American

The National Secondary Educational Council reported David Culley has been named an Academic All-American.

Culley is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Culley. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Culley of Bandera, Texas and Rev. and Mrs. C. T. McRae of Manila, Philippines

The council selects Academic All-American Scholars upon the exclusive recommendations of teachers, coaches, counselors, and other qualified sponsors. Once awarded, the students may be recognized by the NSEC for other honors.

The NSEC has established the Academic All-American Scholar Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines.

The Academic All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average.

Only scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the NSEC. These are awards few students can ever hope to attain.

Culley who attends Bay Junior High School, was nominated for this national award by Bonnie Allison, counselor.

He will appear in the Academic All-American Scholar Directory, which is published nationally.

COUNTRY LORE

The readers of MOTHER EARTH NEWS are an inventive bunch of people; they come up with all sorts of solutions to everyday problems. And we'd like to share some of these ideas with you.

A Stocking Seed Saver

Want to collect flower or herb seeds from your choice blooms? Elizabeth Elliott just slips an old nylon stocking over each bloom and ties it shut around the stalk. This way, the flowers in her Anniston, Alabama, garden can dry out naturally and then drop their precious seeds right into the stockings.

NYLON STOCKING

Waste Not ...

Joe Plough wrote to us from Columbia, South Carolina, to say that whenever he has a little enamel paint left over in the bottom of a bucket, he uses it to coat the inside of his wheelbarrow to keep it from rusting. (We bet he has the most interesting-looking wheelbarrow in his county.)

Garlic Under Glass

When you harvest garlic this year, take a tip from Dixie Collum. The Parma, Ohio, reader stores the peeled cloves in fruit jars, covering the buds with cooking oil. This keeps them firm and fresh, and when a jar is emptied of garlic, the aromatic oil can be used for greasing pans and casserole dishes, imparting a light garlic flavor to food. Garlic lovers will discover that the oil can also be made into delicious salad dressings.

Pop Chemistry

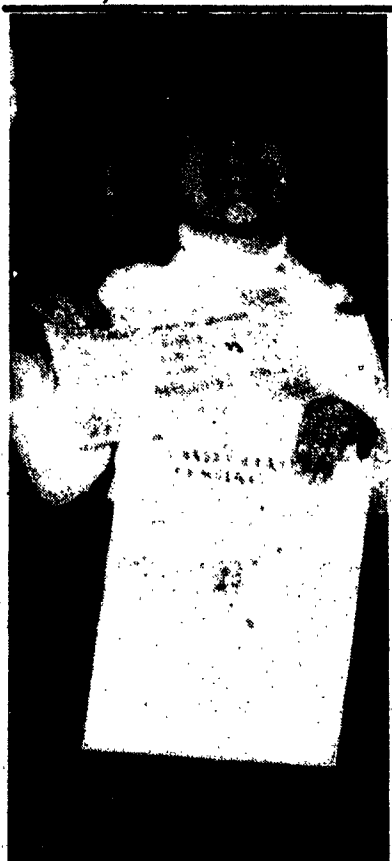

Ernst Erbe—an El Paso, Texas, reader—reminds us that cola can substitute for penetrating oil when you've got a rusted nut and bolt or such. Just soak the parts in the soda overnight, and the next day they'll come apart as if you'd used the real thing.

Folling Mice

Patty Pritchett's cat, Charlie, was doing his feline finest to keep her Houston, Texas, home free of rodents—but wasn't racking up too good a score. Then Patty hit on a way to tip her kitty off to a mouse's presence. She crinkled up a large square of kitchen foil and pressed it out more or less flat again. At bedtime each night, she placed the foil in the middle of the kitchen floor with a hunk of bait (some kind that Charlie wouldn't touch!) as a centerpiece. The subtle sound of tiptoeing on tinfoil got Charlie's attention, and the Pritchett house is now mouse-free.
